Targeting Minorities in Karnataka

The recent legislation in Karnataka gives legal cover for majoritarian religious fundamentalist groups to violate the fundamental freedoms of religion and conscience of those they see as the "other." page 12

Transparency in Election Process

The Citizens' Commission on Elections calls for modifications in the current design of the VVPAT system to make it truly "voter-verified" to ensure that the elections, using electronic means, adhere to the standard democratic principles. page 35

Germany after Merkel

The electoral shifts in Germany signify the end of the political cycle that coincided with the hegemony of neo-liberalism, but the coalition agreement among the ruling parties fails to recognise this reality. page 25

CURRENT STATISTICS

POSTSCRIPT

Measurement of Unemployment

Going by the overall measure that includes the category of self-employment, which is a default sector for a significant share of people to eke out a living, produces a misleading picture of loss of jobs and work. page 37

Pitfalls of Nutri-crops

In the absence of large subsidies, nutri-crops are an unattractive option for small farmers, and the reduced yields associated with these crops will undermine India's food security. page 58

Sacred Groves in Jharkhand

The governance of sacred groves involves convergence as well as divergence among the communities, institutions, power structures of the union and state governments and the social and political organisations in their everyday conservation and management practices. page 42

Contract Farming and Smallholders

The provisions of the now repealed Contract Farming Act, 2020 are critically examined from a small farmer's perspective, arguing for the effective and smallholder-relevant contract farming regulations. page 13

The Need for Minimum Wage

Given the distinct nature of workers earning minimum wages in low-income countries when compared to high-income ones, it remains significantly effective in tackling inequality in the former. page 10

A Data Protection Regulator

The proposal for a data protection authority is a significant move towards personal data protection in the revised Personal Data Protection Bill. page 17

Management Education in India

Unless the principles of responsible management education reach the entire set of institutions that are imparting management education in India, the gap between the best and those yet to become the best will not be narrowed. page 29

The Edtech Saga

Does moving away from the traditional classroom to a virtual one, as organised by the edtech companies, fulfil the socially transformative aims of education? page 36

Forest Grants for Forest Cover

While the national government has made annual fiscal transfers to the states since 2005, a model shows why this has not prevented a decline in forest cover in highly forested states, whereas there has been a rise in states with low initial cover. page 50
